

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I always enjoy reading the letters pertaining to the Ridgeline property. It has really struck a nerve. If it's sour grapes because, "I have mine and I don't want you to have yours", or whether there is a legal precedent for that property being held as a wild life preserve I just can't figure out. It would appear to me that we are spending a lot of time and energy on something that the courts will have to decide on anyway. To be honest I have a tough time seeing it survive as a golf course in today's world. After all it will never be Augusta National.

I've owned property in Orange Park Acres for over 30 years and like it just like it was when I bought it. Of course I remember orange tree branches extending out into Whittier Blvd. in La Habra too. No more, and I'm not sure I should expect Orange Park Acres to remain that way either. If it has to go this looks like it would go in style anyway.
